

Society of American Archivists

SUSTAINING MEMBERS

It has become increasingly apparent that the Society must have additional resources if it is to develop into a strong professional organization. Resources are needed for a publication program and other professional services; but most important, the Society must be able to afford a full-time, paid secretary in the near future.

As a result of the pressing need for funds, the Council has directed the president and the secretary to invite archival institutions to become Sustaining Members, each for the fee of $100 a year. As of March 23, 1971, twenty-two institutions have joined as Sustaining Members. The realization of the Society's goal of one hundred Sustaining Members will enable it to make definite plans for a permanent secretariat.

Library Lighting Report

Lighting libraries is the subject of a study prepared for and recently published by the Association of Research Libraries with the assistance of a grant from the Council on Library Resources, Inc. The author of Library Lighting is Keyes D. Metcalf, emeritus Harvard College librarian and dean of library building consultants. During a career extending well over half a century, he has seen library lighting change from a few footcandles to the 100-plus footcandles found in some modern libraries. Mr. Metcalf's nontechnical book is for the use of academic administrative officers, faculty building committees, librarians, architects, and laymen. In preparing his study he had the assistance of more than 50 consultants including architects, consulting and construction engineers and contractors, illuminating engineers, interior designers, ophthalmologists, psychologists and reading experts, and—representing users of libraries—research scholars and librarians. The study considers five major lighting problems—quality, functional aspects, aesthetics, intensity, and costs—and presents Mr. Metcalf's own conclusions after a study of the relevant literature and consideration of his consultants' varying opinions. It does not deal with the relative merits of polarized lighting, incandescent bulbs, fluorescent tubes, or mercury-vapor and sodium-vapor lamps, except as they relate to function, intensity, and cost. In Planning Academic and Research Library Buildings (1965), sponsored by the Association of Research Libraries and the Association of College and Research Libraries under an earlier council grant, Mr. Metcalf referred to lighting as "complicated and sometimes controversial." In the present work he says that because of differing points of view "lighting remains the most controversial problem that the writer has found in his work with librarians, architects, and building committees, both in planning new library buildings and in renovating and adding to old buildings." The 99-page work is available for $2 from the Association of Research Libraries, 1527 New Hampshire Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Contributions to this department should be addressed to Clark W. Nelson, Archivist, Mayo Clinic/Foundation, Rochester, Minn. 55901.

Fine Arts Handbook

How to Care for Works of Art on Paper, believed to be the first general guide on the preservation of valuable prints, books, and treasured documents, is available from the Museum of Fine Arts Sales Desk, 465 Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass. 02115, for $2, with a minimum handling and shipping charge of 50¢. The museum published the handbook in connection with an exhibition on the Conservation of Works of Art on Paper and in response to countless queries received from private collectors, galleries, museums, libraries, historical societies, and artists and framers. Written by Francis W. Dolloff and Roy Perkinson, conservator and assistant conservator of the museum's department of prints and drawings, respectively, and made possible by a grant from the Mohawk Paper Mills, Inc., the 46-page, illustrated handbook explains the nature of paper and the fundamentals of preservation. Mr. Dolloff states: "Paper is taken for granted. It is an essential material and yet is poorly understood. Unless its characteristics are understood, there is danger that the graphic records of our historic and artistic heritage will not survive." A concise account of the evolution of papermaking, which focuses on the innovations affecting the durability and consistency of paper, is included, and the different methods of manufacture are cited to explain the wide variety of quality available today. Subsequent sections deal with the manifold "enemies" of paper, both internal, such as the weakness born in short-fibered paper, and external, such as discoloration from the harmful chemicals in city smog. Simple preventive measures against mold fading, paper pests, air pollution, and other destructive agents in the environment and storing and handling instructions are presented. A chapter including step-by-step illustrations explains how to mat and frame prints and drawings and the dangers of using improper techniques and inappropriate materials. The handbook also includes a list of sources for paper materials and services and a select bibliography for further reading.

Fire Protection Consultant

Horatio Bond, the former chief engineer of the National Fire Protection Association and a private consultant since his recent retirement from the NFPA, has set up an office at P.O. Box 393, Hyannis Port, Mass. 02647. His telephone number there is 617-771-1606 or 617-775-1647. His fields include the formulation and interpretation of building codes, fire department management, and the protection of historical collections and historic buildings. He will evaluate site conditions affecting fire protection and water supply and offer advice where the threat is riot-set or incendiary. Appointments to meet clients in Boston or elsewhere can be arranged.

Vapor Phase Deacidification Evaluation

The article by R. N. DuPuis, J. E. Kusterer, Jr., and R. C. Sproull, "Evaluation of Vapor Phase Deacidification Process," in Restaurator, 1:149-164 (1970), covers the work done on the vapor phase deacidification process at the W. J. Barrow Research Laboratory in Richmond, Va. The objectives of the study were to determine: whether the CHC (cyclohexylamine carbonate) used in the process would raise the pH of acid paper above 7.0; the stability of the treatment and its effects on paper; and what effects the CHC vapors have on humans. A considerable part of the report deals with the physiological effects of CHC; despite the chemical benefits, the toxic qualities of CHC make its use questionable. In conclusion the authors note:

(1) CHC treatment of separate sheets of various types of papers increased the pH of book papers. (2) CHC treatment increased the percent retention of fold endurance and tear resistance over untreated samples after equivalent heat-ageing cycles. (3) CHC hydrolyzes to cyclohexylamine, an odorous and toxic chemical, on exposure to moist air. (4) The CHC treatment appeared to destroy the effect of rosin sizing. (5) The CHC treatment decreased the brightness and fluorescence of papers treated. (6) Even if more extensive tests showed that the CHC treatment penetrated all pages of a book reasonably uniformly and no other harmful effects resulted, the toxicity of cyclohexylamine would seem to cast serious doubt on the feasibility of the process despite indicated advantages of increased pH and increased percent retention of fold endurance and tear resistance. It is, therefore, suggested that the users or potential users of the Langwell vapor phase deacidification process form their own opinions on the precautions they must take, not only to insure adequate deacidification, but to avoid possible health hazards to themselves and to those who handle treated books and papers.

Microfilm Retrieval Aids

Two digital display devices have been introduced by Eastman Kodak Co., 343 State St., Rochester, N.Y. 14650, to facilitate the retrieval of specific microfilmed documents. The Recordak Image Control Keyboard, Model IC-5, and the Recordak Image Count Display, Model IC-D, electronically "count" index marks on microfilm and simultaneously display the number of each image passing through the film gate of a Recordak Microstar reader. The IC-5 keyboard automatically searches Recordak microfilm magazines (at transport speeds up to 8 feet a second) until it locates the image number keyed in by the operator. The transport then "stops" the film at that particular image, and the screen displays the code number as visual verification of a successful search. Users have the option of adding "duo" capability that enables the unit to search two tracks of microfilm in the same magazine. Both the IC-5 and the IC-D units feature a five-digit readout display and are compatible with Microstar readers now in service and with any projection lens for the readers (though 27 \times through 45 \times lenses should be used with the duomode option); all Microstar reader viewing features (scanning, zooming, image rotation, etc.) may be operated in conjunction with the searching routine. Model IC-D, lets the Microstar reader operator conduct a similar search visually. The IC-D readout panel displays each image number as it passes the film gate. By referring to the displayed numbers and manually controlling the film transport speed, the operator can quickly locate the desired image. Since the microfilm images are consecutively numbered, the operator can often transport the film at speeds of up to 8 feet a second, slowing the speed as the correct image approaches the film gate.

Preservation Supplies

The 1971 catalog of TALAS, published by the Technical Library Service, 104 Fifth Ave., New York City 10011, lists tools and supplies for bookbinding, book repair, art and book conservation, and archives. Though most of the items in the 32-page listing are not of interest to archivists, there are enough archival materials cited to make the catalog a worthwhile order book. Among the acid-free papers mentioned are lining, wrapping, and mat boards. Permalife paper products listed include envelopes for microfiche, sheet film, and regular use; file and map folders; and 20-pound sheets. Transparent cellulose acetate envelopes for protecting fragile documents are also included. Pamphlet boxes, document cases, manuscript cases, portfolios, map tubes, and other acid-free storage boxes can be ordered to specifications. Storage boxes are available for two 5- or 7-inch audio-tape reels. Rolls of 100-foot mylar sheeting can be supplied in widths from 22 to 50 inches. Flat stainless steel paper clips, rustproof staples, Plexiglas sheeting that absorbs ultraviolet rays, and Plexiglas tubes that slip over fluorescent lights and minimize damaging radiation are also included.

Fumigation Equipment

A major manufacturer of vacuum fumigating equipment, Vacudyne Corp., 375 East Joe Orr Rd., Chicago Heights, Ill. 60411, has been designing and manufacturing fumigators for almost two decades. Currently they offer a selection of systems for handling from 100 to 1,000 cubic feet of records. The systems, which feature 4-hour operating cycles, designs to accommodate the type of fumigant to be used, door and chamber configurations permitting maximum material handling efficiency, and easy-to-understand manual or automatic controls, are assembled and tested before shipment. According to Vacudyne their vacuum fumigators use common sterilizing gases to penetrate thoroughly the entire contents of their chambers. As archivists know vacuum fumigation is more effective, more rapid, and safer than atmospheric fumigation. In a vacuum fumigator records are placed in a chamber, which is vacuumized; toxic sterilizing gases are then released to quickly exterminate destructive insects and their larvae and destroy fungus and mold. As the toxic gases are in the chamber only while it is under vacuum, the possibility of exposure to the operator and the surrounding area is minimal. Vacudyne's standard fumigation system uses a 12 to 88 ethylene oxide gas mixture.

Xerox Flat-Plate Process

George M. Cunha, conservator of the Boston Athenæum, recently reported that in response to an appeal by the Athenæum Conservation Laboratory and as a contribution to the conservation of our heritage, Xerox Corp. has decided to keep one of its early Standard Xerox copiers (with no. 4 camera, processor, and heat fuser) in service to perform what is commonly called the flat-plate process. The pioneer equipment, now supplanted for commercial work by more rapid and efficient Xerox copiers, is important to custodians and restorers of textual materials and artworks on paper. According to Mr. Cunha it will reproduce missing or damaged pages in valuable books or parts of important broadsides, maps, and prints on any hand- or machine-made paper of appropriate weight, tone, and texture. The reproductions match or complement the originals, making high-quality and aesthetically pleasing repairs possible. Reproductions of book pages have no shadows outlining the edges, and back-to-back pages are in register. Flat-plate copies of black-and-white illustrative materials are equally satisfactory. The service is available from the Xerox Reproduction Center, 230 Second Ave., Waltham, Mass. 02154.

Deaths of Members

PHILIP MAY HAMER, Editor of The Papers of Henry Laurens; Executive Director emeritus of the National Historical Publications Commission; founding member, Fellow, and past president of the Society of American Archivists; and director and editor of A Guide to Archives and Manuscripts in the United States, the 2-volume guide Federal Records of World War II, and the National Archives Guide (1948); on April 10, 1971, in Bethesda, Md. A commemorative statement appears on p. 339 of this issue.

ICKO IBEN, retired Archivist of the University of Illinois Library and emeritus vice president, American Water Resources Association, died in Urbana, Ill., on March 10, 1971. Born in Ostfriesland, Germany, on January 21, 1900, he attended public schools and college in Europe, receiving the Ph. D. degree from Martin Luther University, Halle-Wittenberg in 1923. He came to the United States in 1924. Two years later he began studying library science at the Library School of the University of Illinois, where he received the B.S. and A.M. degrees. For several years after graduation he worked as a bibliographer in the Acquisitions Department of the university library. In 1934 he became director of the Oklahoma State University Library in Stillwater, where he remained until 1939. During the next 5 years he served as an archivist in the Illinois State Library. Returning to the University of Illinois in 1945,

Dr. Iben assumed responsibility for developing the library's newspaper collection and archives. Under his direction this division of the library became a major research facility of the university and the State of Illinois. Dr. Iben's scholarly and professional activities reflected a broad range of interest and competence in literary, historical, bibliographical, and archival fields. An outstanding linguist, he was at home with English, German, French, Spanish, Latin, Greek, Dutch, Flemish, Norwegian, Italian, Afrikaans, and Frisian. This linguistic ability was evident in his long service of abstracting foreign periodicals for the American Archivist. After his retirement in 1968 he was very active in the American Water Resources Association, of which he was a founder. As editor of Hydata and Water Resources Abstracts, publications of the association, he used his great bibliographic and literary talents to make new scholarly contributions.

DAVIS COLLIER WOOLLEY, executive secretary-treasurer of the Historical Commission, Southern Baptist Convention, died in Nashville, Tenn., on January 15, 1971. The son of a Baptist minister, he was born in Alabama on September 22, 1908, and attended college in Montgomery and Birmingham. He earned the master and doctor of theology degrees at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., and was the pastor of several Baptist churches in Kentucky and Florida. Before coming to Nashville in 1959 he was director of the Extension Department Service of Howard College (renamed Samford University) in Birmingham. For 11 years thereafter he was the principal executive officer of the Southern Baptist Convention's Historical Commission. Unfortunately his death occurred just before the completion of one of his most important commission projects, the publication of volume 3 of the Southern Baptist Encyclopedia, which he edited. Dr. Woolley was the author of several works dealing with Baptist history and received praise for his contributions to his denomination as a historian, pastor, teacher, and administrator.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES AND RECORDS SERVICE

Office of the Archivist

The National Archives Conference on Research on the Second World War, cosponsored by the American Committee on the History of the Second World War, was held June 14-15, 1971, at the National Archives Building. Topics dealt with included trends and problems in current World War II research, the role of science and technology in the war, the contributions of military biography to the study of the war, and access to records of the war period.

In "The Role of Archives in the 1970's," a lecture delivered at the University of Louisiana at Baton Rouge on January 21, 1971, James B. Rhoads, Archivist of the United States, indicated that in the coming years the National Archives and Records Service will be concerned with commemorating the bicentennial of the American Revolution, expanding its data archives program, and revitalizing its finding aid and publication programs—especially by the publication of a new general guide to the National Archives of the United States scheduled for this year and the preparation of guides relating to black studies and urban history.

Office of the National Archives

Recent accessions include records (1939–54) of the Bureau of the Budget relating primarily to domestic programs but also to foreign aid and other commitments abroad; records of the National Commission on Reform of the Federal Criminal Laws, established in 1966 to recommend legislation that would improve the Federal system of criminal justice, including the final report, interim reports of 1968 and 1969, an administrative subject file, and staff members' research and reading files; general correspondence (1965), an addition to an Office of the Secretary of Agriculture subject file begun in 1906; and interrogation reports of the War Department Historical Interrogation Commission received from the Office of the Chief of Military History, Department of the Army. The interrogation reports, which supplement the reports on German foreign relations of the DeWitt C. Poole Special Interrogation Mission to Germany of the Department of State, were made at detention and interrogation centers in Europe, where the Commission functioned from July to November 1945. Other accessions are staff members' records from terminated organizational units of the National Archives, including the Division of Agriculture, Treasury, and Interior Department Archives and the Offices of Civil and Military Archives; most of the records of the 88th Congress, 1963–64, chiefly general correspondence, legislative files, hearings, petitions, memorials, and committee papers of standing and select committees (Agriculture, Armed Services, Banking and Currency, District of Columbia, Education and Labor, Foreign Affairs, Government Operations, House Administration, Interior and Insular Affairs, Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Judiciary, Merchant Marine and Fisheries, Post Office and Civil Service, Public Works, Science and Astronautics, Veterans Affairs, Ways and Means, Government Research, and Small Business); and central foreign policy files (1945–49) of the Department of State. Because the files for 1945 are within the restricted period of Department of State records (1942–45), access to them must be granted by the Department; departmental records for 1946–49 are generally closed to nonofficial researchers. As the annual volumes in the Department's documentary series, Foreign Relations of the United States, are published, the beginning date of the closed period is advanced.

Among other recent accessions are a few manuscript and annotated maps and plans of study and project sites in Washington, D.C., compiled or used by the National Capital Planning Commission from 1909 to 1966. This accession brings the total cartographic holdings (1791–1966) for the central agency planning the conservation of important natural and historical features in the National Capital area to over 1,000 sketches, maps, and plans. Also accessioned are Department of State maps and diagrams of post-World War II territorial problem areas of the world, complementing a similar series of departmental maps and relating to population, religious groups, communication patterns, resources, and historical and potential frontier problem areas; the central correspondence file (1916-54) of the U.S. Tariff Commission; the Abbie Rowe White House collection (1941-63) consisting of photographs taken by a National Park Service photographer that relate to the activities, families, and aides of Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, and Kennedy and to the ceremonial and state occasions during their administrations; Forest Service photographs (1896-1910) relating to Service functions and activities, the first part of a continuing accession that will cover the period 1896-1955; and Universal Newsreels (1946-48), with related indexes and reference and finding aids. Universal will gradually transfer its entire film collection (1929-67) to the National Archives. Among other accessions are the first major acquisition of motion picture film from the Department of the Navy, films (1942-60) that relate to World War II and the Korean action and that include captured Italian, German, and Japanese footage; instructional films used in technical assistance programs and other documentary films (1932-55) of the U.S. Information Agency, relating to life in the United States, South America, Europe, North Africa, and the Soviet Union; microfilm copies of non-population census schedules for Kansas (1860-80), Nebraska (1860-80), and Virginia (1850-80); and administrative files of the Public Land Law Review Commission, consisting of records and published reports on the history and administration of public lands and Federal, State, and non-governmental programs involving the public domain.

In keeping with guidelines established in 1965, the National Archives reviewed the records of the President's Commission on the Assassination of President John F. Kennedy (the Warren Commission) in 1970. Two feet of basic source materials furnished to the Commission by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and the Central Intelligence Agency were made available for research. Other records of the Commission withheld from research in a 1967 review will be reviewed again in 1972.

Revised National Archives publications include General Information Leaflet No. 17, Suggestions for Citing Records in the National Archives of the United States, and Staff Information Paper 19, The Selection and Preparation of Records for Publication on Microfilm, by Frank B. Evans. Additions to the Guide to German Records Microfilmed at Alexandria, Va., are: No. 62, Records of German Field Commands: Corps (Part VII) and No. 63, No. 64, and No. 65, Records of German Field Commands: Divisions (Part III); (Part IV); and (Part V). Records recently microfilmed by the National Archives include Records of the Department of State Relating to Internal Affairs of Persia, 1910-29 (37 rolls).

The newsletter will be issued three times a year and will be sent on a continuing basis to interested individuals and institutions. The first issue of the publication (Winter 1971) gives a brief history of the Archives and lists its major groups of records and historical manuscripts. These groups include records of the United Automobile, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers and several other labor organizations and personal papers of individuals associated with the labor movement and urban affairs.

Public Archives of Canada

Manuscript Division: Statistics for 1970 indicate considerable increases in accessions and reference work, with the number of researchers increasing by 40 percent. Recent accessions include records of the Departments of Trade and Commerce, Immigration, Labour, and External Affairs and the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism, 1963-70. A labour archives program has been initiated and the co-operation of labour unions, labour historians, and others is being solicited. We are indebted to Prof. Philip Mason, director of the extensive labour archives at Wayne State University and SAA president, for his expert advice and assistance in the development of the project. Progress has been made in developing a data base to be used in automating the control and retrieval of public records in Government departments as well as in the Public Archives.

Picture Division: The Manoir Richelieu collection including 2,500 oil paintings, water colours, drawings, lithographs, engravings, and maps on Canadian history to about 1867 has been accessioned. The collection is being catalogued, and plans are being made to exhibit the materials in galleries and museums across the country within the next 2 years. Other accessions include negatives from Alexandra Studios, Toronto; Expo '67 still photographs from the National Film Board; and Duncan Cameron's photographs from Capital Press Limited. A program for the systematic acquisition of historical photographs has been developed by Andrew Birrell. It will involve major newspapers, the best known photographers and studios, and owners of outstanding collections. The work of William Gallaway in collecting historical motion picture footage continues; the Public Archives has assumed responsibility for preserving video tapes of television programs on both Government and private networks.

Map Division: Work continues on the development of a National Union Catalogue of Maps. County Atlases: a Descriptive Catalogue was published recently. The atlases, first published in the 1870's and 1880's, are of special interest to local historians and genealogists. Catalogues describing the atlases in the National Map Collection are being prepared by L. Soboeck; the first volume will concern Dutch atlases. Five sets of 10 coloured slides each, entitled "History of Canada in Maps," are being prepared by the National Film Board. On December 11, 1970, in a brief ceremony Dominion Archivist Wilfred I. Smith accepted the first major acquisition of the new National Architectural Archives.

Alberta

Provincial Museum and Archives: Recent accessions include records of the Deer Park Mutual Telephone Co., letters patent appointing G. Hoadley as Minister in the United Farmers of Alberta government of the 1920's, papers of the Lamoureux family, and a manuscript history of and notes on the Athabasca area. Procedural notes for persons to be interviewed on tape and interviewers have been printed. Revised forms for Public Documents Committee procedures in disposing of Government records came into use on March 1. Over 3,000 cards have been prepared for the index to the Brown and Pollard photograph collections.

Glenbow-Alberta Institute: Recent accessions include North West Mounted Police records consisting of diaries and letters (chiefly 1874-1900) and a biographical manuscript, all written by Capt. William Parker; Social Credit records, chiefly scripts of radio broadcasts and addresses given by William Aberhart in the late 1930's, a chronology of the party, and related correspondence, clippings, and leaflets; photographs relating to the development of the Peace River area of Alberta, 1911-28; and manuscripts and typescripts of pioneer interviews (1922-36) of Elizabeth Bailey Price, Alberta writer.

"Considerably Used Up"

Office of Com^r. of P B and Grounds.

(Warner Building)
29th Sept. 1884

Colonel A. F. Rockwell,
Com^r. of P B & Grounds

Sir:

I respectfully call your attention to the fact that the Original Map of the City of Washington, on file in this office, which was approved of by President Washington on the 2nd Mar. 1797, has become considerably used up, from its frequent handling at Court and here.

The present generation believe this Map is that prepared for the "Engraved plan" by Major Ellicott in 1792. Having just concluded a thorough examination of the records in this office, to remove a doubt on my own mind, I find that the "Original Map of the City of Washington", is altogether a different map, from the printed one, that it was got up by James R. Dermott in 1795, who was then City Surveyor. That fact will become public next time the map is produced in Court and the discovery will cause a much grater reference to it and handling of It.

I therefore desire respectfully to state should no remedy be adopted speedily for its better preservation, it will become totally useless. It being a most important document, being the foundation of the City. I beg to suggest for your consideration, that an appropriation of $500.00 be asked for from Congress, for to have a careful and correct copy made from the original, and after its careful and critical examination, to be adopted by Congress and approved of by the President, as the Original Map of the City of Washington, when the present one, can be filed past. Or any other better way that you may consider will preserve it best.

I have the honor to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant
John Stewart C.E.

THE COMPLETE PRESIDENTIAL PRESS CONFERENCES OF

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT

Introduction by Jonathan Daniels

For FDR, formal meetings with the press were highly valued as an instrument for governing the nation, and he held them with unparalleled frequency—more than 80 per year, 1,011 during his twelve years and one month in office.

FDR's press conferences were intimate, usually held in his own office with a representative group of White House reporters; and they were confidential—remarks could be directly attributed to the President only at his own leave, and most remarks were held off the record. Nevertheless, accurate transcripts of all 1,011 conferences were prepared, and these are now to be published by Da Capo Press in 12 thoroughly indexed volumes containing more than 7,000 pages.

These volumes are indispensable as a running record of the Roosevelt years. Virtually every problem confronting the President during his long tenure, ranging from the personal and political through the economic and military, is discussed in depth from the moment of its appearance through its ultimate resolution.

Equally important, these volumes paint a vivid picture of Roosevelt the man. Working in the privacy of his own office, speaking always to familiar faces, operating under his own ground rules, FDR is seen relaxed, buoyant, always in full command. As press conference follows press conference, an unrivaled picture is built up of the consummate politician as President.

The Complete Presidential Press Conferences of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The future won't take care of itself!

It's up to you to make sure that important documents in your care are protected from unnecessary deterioration in storage.

How? By using Permalife whenever your documents come in contact with other paper products—file folders, interleaving sheets, storage envelopes, mounting boards, box linings. Permalife is acid free (pH 8.5), lasts at least 300 years, and is more economical than rag stocks.

Both physical and aesthetic damage can result from the migration of impurities when documents of value are kept in continual contact with low-grade papers. Don't leave the future to chance.

Ask any bookman. The big ones. He'll give you that unkempt smile while quoting a title from another's catalogue. He may even drop his billfold. His answer? Sherrinford got there first ¶ Trying to get around the dictum and pressure in making acquisitions to, or completing special collections? Just write or cable Sherrinford. He won't place you on his mailing-list. He won't forward you catalogues or bibliographically pristine broadsides for all to see, and publicize ¶ Through private and unprecedented offerings of unpublished material only, Sherrinford will make an open and shut case of your special collecting requirements. And he'll quote the unpublished item you want, catalogues in advance of any book dealer. Scholarly legwork. That's our bag ¶ Sherrinford will get farther on a farthing than any establishment man. A fazenda in the back country of Sao Paulo. Sherrinford has brought back the last known papers of Stefan Zweig. A manor, on a loch in Scotland. Sherrinford has an option on bundles of unpublished letters and many firsts, with a provenance to Tobias Smollett ¶ With Sherrinford, quality is not just a name on a catalogue cover. Quality is the unpublished, and this is our only criteria. A letter, a holograph manuscript, a correspondence too precious to be offered on a wholesale basis ¶ Through Sherrinford, the realization of your requirements becomes a well-calculated probability. Follow the treadmarks of Sherrinford. Get his number. His devises are beyond the imagination, means or ken of any book dealer. The hungriest and fattest. Sherrinford would rather be a trifle cool, calm and collected, working in the shadows, for you. Sherrinford would never inflate his prices by inflating his ego. He's not an all cap name across the page of a scholarly publication. Our man directs his PR with an abundance of stealth and good taste, in the right direction. Where you get the most out of it. He'll play baccara at Monte Carlo, with Lord B----- there's more than casino money and conversation here. The unpublished papers of one of Byron's terribly distraught lovers ¶ Cable or write to Sherrinford now. Tell him about the material you want. He won't ring up a dealer in Edinburgh, hoping you haven't already been solicited. We'll go out into the field for you. Far a'field of any catalogue. Brescia, Benares, Cyprus, Dieppe, Gerona, Killarney, Leiden, Monaco ¶ Sherrinford will look after your scholarly interests with regular reports and communiques directly from the field ¶ Sherlock & Co., Ltd., 777 Silver Spur Road, Suite 132, Rolling Hills Estates, California ¶ Cable address: Sherrinford.
