

Annual Bibliography

Writings on Archives: 1988

Editor's note: The annual bibliography of writings on archives was a regular feature in the American Archivist from 1943 until 1980, providing a valuable source for research, first for current practice and subsequently for archival history. Throughout that period it was compiled at the National Archives and Records Service (now "Administration") and was based on the holdings in the National Archives Library. Budget cuts and reorganizations in the National Archives hampered the compilation in recent years. After several years' absence from the American Archivist, the National Archives published a catchup volume, Writings on Archives, Historical Manuscripts, and Current Records: 1979-82. Annual bibliographies for 1983 and 1984 were published in the Summer and Fall 1986 (vol. 49) issues of AA. There has been no published compilation for archival writings from 1985 to the present.

SAA's 1988 bibliography was made possible by the creation of the Archives and Library Information Center (ALIC) in the National Archives Library. Since 1988 ALIC has served members of the records community as a central source of bibliographic information on archival and records management subjects.

Several factors distinguish the 1988 bibliography from its predecessors. In sheer size it nearly doubles (from 600 to 1,197 entries) the 1984 bibliography, probably reflecting both more writing by archivists and increased recognition of archivally relevant literature in related fields. It was compiled retrospectively (work did not begin until late 1989). It was the first to employ extensive online bibliographic searching and the first to utilize bibliographic database software.

Perhaps most obvious to readers, the 1988 bibliography has abandoned the eleven categories that provided the organizational structure for previous compilations. Our judgment that the categories had become dated led to a decision to collapse the citations into just two broad categories and rely on an index (made more practicable by the ProCite software) to provide multiple access points.

The first category, writings on archives, contains 1,013 citations to articles and monographs about professional topics in the areas of archives, records management, information science, and related fields. The second category, descriptions of archival holdings, includes 184 citations to published inventories, repository guides, multi-institutional guides and directories, and descriptive essays in history and other subject-area journals. Coverage in the latter category is clearly not as complete as the former. Future bibliographies will continue to include descriptive writings, but not at the record group and collection level.
